

Chapter 10 – The Future of Job Analysis

Exercises

1. Describe how you think computers might change your current job (or one you know well) within the next year.
2. Suppose that, in the future, most jobs will be bid upon by groups of people that are all self-employed. For example, a group might form to design a building, create a marketing strategy for a new product, or complete a surgery. Groups will form specifically to complete a project, and once the project is completed, the groups disband (though the same people may cooperate again on another project). Describe how such groups might select group members and design effective and efficient procedures for accomplishing tasks. What impact would you expect to find on management? On job analysis? On legal issues?